certificates of honor.

Nearly 200 names are included in the list of those who, leaving all thought of self behind, plunged into and its the water off North Brothers island on June 14 last, to rescue struggling women and children who had jumped from the decks of the burning steamer.

Those who are to receive rewards have been divided into three classes. The first class receives the silver medals, the highest award of the life saving corps; the second class, bronze medals, and the third class, certifi-cates of honor. At the head of the first class are three girls. The first, Mary McGann, who was a convalescent on North Brothers island, waded out and dragged ashore six boys and girls. Miss Lou McKibbon, telephone operator on North Brothers island, stands No. 2. With rare presence of mind she summoned the fire department and notified all the hospitals. The third is Miss Paline Puets, who was also a convalencent. She saved five children.

Included around the fire department and notified all the hospitals. F. A. SWINGLE, ARCHITECT AND SUperintendent. Plans and specifications for city and county work. LaDow Block.

Included among those to receive certificates of honor are 12 members of the police department.
